$5,000 reward:

Someone set this cat on fire

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

What looked like a "ball of fire" moving through Circle Park late Wednesday night turned out to be somebody's idea of a very cruel prank. A cat had been lit ablaze and turned loose.

Witnesses walking near Circle Street and Alabama Street at about 11:15 p.m. reported seeing the flaming cat. They investigated and found it badly burned, but alive, reported Vicky Fletcher of the county sheriff's department animal services division.

The citizens stayed with the cat until an animal services officer arrived.

"The cat, a stray with no owner, described as a domestic short hair brown tabby female, was transported by Animal Services to the UC Davis School of Veterinary Medicine Teaching Hospital for emergency care," added Fletcher in a press release. "Veterinary staff first hoped this very friendly cat would survived this horrible act of animal cruelty, but sadly, the cat had to be euthanized (May 3) as the pain became unmanageable and there were clinical signs the animal would lose its limbs due to the extent of the burns."

"It was determined the cat was burned by being doused with accelerant and then intentionally lit on fire," she added.

As of yesterday, there was $5,000 in reward money waiting for anyone with information leading to the arrest and conviction of whoever is responsible. The money comes from RedRover, a national animal-protection organization based in Sacramento, and from the Yolo County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Anyone with information is asked to call Yolo's Animal Services section at (530) 668-5287, or West Sacramento police at (916) 617-4900.

Park improvements funded at Poplar Avenue school site

Romero, Martinez and Villegas were at Westfield Village Elementary School on April 25 to announce a $150,000 grant that Kaiser Permanente gave to Yolo County Children's Alliance, to create a public park at the school, and other initiatives to improve the health of the Westfield neighborhood through a coalition of community organizations. Part of the existing grassy area will be fenced off for the new park, which will include a walking trail around the grass, and a play structure, among other amenities. Groundbreaking could begin as early as this summer.

Land on and near the Westfield Village Elementary School's playfields will be upgraded into a neighborhood park, thanks largely to a $150,000 grant from Kaiser Permanente.

The grant comes from a Kaiser program that tries to fight obesity by helping people eat better and become more active. Westfield, located on Poplar Avenue in the city's older north area, is one of 12 sites to receive portions of the fund's $10 million allocation.

"We are thrilled to receive this funding from Kaiser Permanente because it gives us the resources to solve a very specific problem in the neighborhood – the lack of park space, especially for children and families who want to stay active on weekends and during the summer," said Katie Villegas in a press release. She is executive director of the Yolo County Children's Alliance, which received the grant. Some of the other partners include the local school district and city government, as well as churches, community groups and Northern California Construction Training Inc.

The Alliance is working on creation of a walking trail around the park, removing unsafe baseball backstops, building restrooms, planting trees and making other improvements at Westfield.

"Like Kaiser Permanente, we know at the City of West Sacramento that the built environment in neighborhoods makes a tremendous difference in the healthy choices that our residents can make," said Mayor Christopher Cabaldon in the Kaiser press release. "We also know it's a big challenge to retrofit older neighborhoods with the parks, playgrounds and field that are mandatory for new developments."

Besides park infrastructure, the grant will help fund community outreach. The "Promotoras de Salud" will employ locals to encourage their neighbors to become more active. They've already enrolled dozens in a new – and free – Zumba exercise class in the neighborhood, reports Kaiser.

The grant also supports a school program that trains adult volunteers to lead physical activities in recess.

Convicted:

A West Sacramento man was convicted last week of sexually abusing his seven-year old daughter. Part of the evidence included 20 videos on the man's cell phone showing him engaging in sexual acts with the girl.

After police received a report that Michael Martinez had been abusing the girl, they teamed with the FBI in a search of his house. The search turned up the cell phone videos.

According to the office of Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig, Martinez initially confessed, but during the trial he denied his guilt. The girl testified.

In the courtroom of Yolo County Judge Janet Gaard, a jury on Wednesday found Martinez guilty of 47 counts of child molestation and five counts of "possessing matter depicting sexual acts by a minor." He will be sentenced on June 25, and faces life in prison.

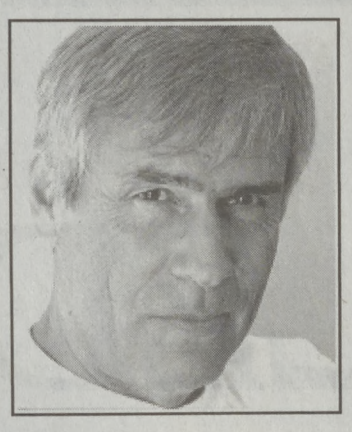
My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

A friend was telling me the saddest little tale the other day and it went something like this:

"My Sunday was right out of a Dickens' novel. You know, the best of times, and the worst of times. It started off so nice, with my friend Lynn and I taking a fantastic hike out in nature on trails that my father used to love. There was even this newly designated pedestrian bridge that took us over a lovely stream and it was almost like heaven standing on it and looking out at all the beautiful countryside. Plus Lynn owns a wonderful little art gallery and is always meeting such interesting people, so it is great fun to spend time with her and listen to her stories.

"Anyway, when I returned to my house I was in a really good mood and decided I would finally get started on the one little chore I had been putting off all weekend. You see, where I work, there is this rather silly tradition of baking homemade cookies for our co-workers when they have a birthday. I've never been a big fan of celebrating birthdays at work to begin with, and I have no idea how this particular tradition got started. I mean, just wish me happy birthday and I'm fine. And at my age, it would actually be nice if everyone would just simply forget all about my birthday. But for whatever reason, this particular tradition still seems to have plenty of life in it, even though most of my co-workers no longer bake. In fact, of the nine women I work with, only my manager, Nicky, and I still bake. And as you can imagine, nine different birthdays come up pretty regularly. Plus Nicky, being the sweetheart she is, insists on baking everyone's favorite thing, and that can lead to a lot of time, effort and expense. I have often thought about telling my co-workers that enough is enough, but that would only mean that Nicky would end up doing all the baking, and I can't stand seeing someone being taken advantage of like that.

"So, even though I was very tired from my long hike with Lynn, I got up off the couch, went out into my kitchen, turned on my oven to pre-heat it, and got started on the batter. Twenty minutes later, while taking a little break to do a load of laundry, I started smelling something burning. Oh, no, I thought to myself, I bet I forgot to remove the plastic and metal electric grill out of the oven where I usually store it. Suddenly, this horrible smelling smoke was everywhere in the house, and in the kitchen it was so dense I could hardly make my way back in there. Plus it was that indescribable burning plastic smell that makes you cough and feel like you're being aphyxiated. Anyway, coughing my lungs out and feeling like one of those World War One soldiers must have felt after being gassed, I somehow managed to find my hot mitts and open the oven door, only to discover that the remains of my grill – having thoroughly baked at 375 degrees – was oozing all over the rack, with the majority of it having settled down into a puddle of really gross-looking primordial stuff at the bottom of the poor oven. It actually kind of looked like that famous Salavador Dali painting of melting clocks.

"So I very carefully took my now mostly liquid grill and the rack it was dripping from out of the oven and in a panic threw them into my plastic garbage can, where they quickly fused together and became one. Then I sat down at my kitchen table, took my hot mitts off, which were covered in plastic ooze, and just stared at my oven in disbelief. I'm not usually a Calamity Jane, but it was quickly obvious to me that this was one of those kinds of messes that can never be completely cleaned up. Already the plastic inside my stove was crackling and cooling and I knew the black wisps of plastic were now permanently affixed to my oven walls. I gave the whole disaster some serious thought and decided that the only way to get it off was to heat the stove up again, but since I never wanted that awful smell to return for a repeat performance, my only real option was to go out and buy myself a brand new stove, which I knew wasn't going to be cheap. And all this because of a silly work tradition that had long outgrown its stay on this earth!"

Already the plastic inside my stove was crackling and cooling and I knew the black wisps of plastic were now permanently affixed to my oven walls.

I called my friend a few days later to see if she was over her cookie baking depression and asked her how she liked her new stove.

"I guess a stove is a stove," she said, "and at least the house doesn't smell so awful anymore. But I still can't stop thinking about how often really terrible things seem to happen when you're just trying to do a good deed. Plus I'm also still trying to find a moral to this sorry little chapter. Any suggestions?"

"Well," I said, "I don't know about a moral to the story, but I do have a little suggestion for you in the future."

"What's that?"

"Store-bought cookies!"

River City High's baseball team hosted the Galt Warriors on May 1.

The RCHS varsity was led by Javi Martinez, who kept the Warriors to one run. The game was called in the Raiders' favor when RCHS built an 11-1 lead, triggering the "10-run rule" that ended the contest early.

The River City junior varsity came from behind to tie their game in the seventh inning, sending the game to extra innings. Logan Funkner hit a sacrifice fly in the 10th to score freshman Jesus Gracia, for a 7-6 home team victory. On Thursday, the team celebrated "Senior Night" with its last home game of the season. The RCHS varsity lost to visiting El Dorado, 3-0.

But the Raiders (listed at 14-12 overall and 11-6 league play) head into the playoffs next week. On Monday at 4 p.m., the team will host a team-to-be-named-later in the first round of the post-season under Coach Jeff Cox. Admission is $6 for adults and $4 for kids.

Washington Unified School District looks ahead at positive budgeting, solicits parent, community input on school improvement projects

(WEST SACRAMENTO, CA) The Washington Unified School District's positive budget certification by the Yolo County Office of Education is a result of prudent fiscal management coupled with ongoing cost savings programs such as the Solar Array Project at River City High School. These measures help to ensure that K-3 class sizes remain at a 20:1 student to teacher ratio—while many school districts across the region are increasing class sizes, the WUSD has placed a high priority on maintaining ideal class sizes for the District's students.

To ensure continued financial prudency and positive budgeting, the Washington Unified School District is looking ahead at much-needed deferred maintenance and safety improvements at each of the school sites.

Therefore, the District is inviting parents and community members to discuss and prioritize the types of school improvement projects that would continue to ensure that the district is providing the best education in modernized and safe facilities. The District will be holding these community meetings on the following dates:

May 14th – 5:30 p.m. at Southport Elementary School Multipurpose Room (2747 Linden Road, West Sacramento)
May 17th – 5:30 p.m. at Riverbank Elementary School Multipurpose Room (1100 Carrie Street, West Sacramento)

California's coastline was 26 miles west of its present location. The Farallons were then not islands but coastal headlands overlooking an open ocean dropping abruptly to great depths. What is now the continental shelf was a vast dry land plain bisected by an ancestral Sacramento River swollen to great volume by melting glaciers then widespread in the Sierra Nevada. It entered the Pacific south of the Farallons and flowed through the Coast Range 300 feet below present water level in deep canyons at what are now the Golden Gate and Carquinez Strait.

The climate then along the lower Sacramento was much like the present coast of southern Alaska and British Columbia, but the world was warming. The great continental ice sheets began retreating, and their meltwater caused seas to rise everywhere. By ten thousand years ago they neared the present shoreline and by eight thousand had entered the Golden Gate.

People were definitely in what would become California by then and had established villages in a broad valley just inside the outermost Coast Range ridge. Soon, however, rising seas following the ancestral Sacramento River's channel inland completely flooded their valley and created what later arrivals would call San Francisco Bay. Inexorably seas pushed farther inland flooding more valleys and creating new bays like San Pablo and Suisun until they finally stopped near the present Montezuma Hills five thousand years ago.

There freshwater flowing downstream from the Sierras and Cascades through the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers met seawater flowing inland through the Golden Gate. They mixed some, but the freshwater mostly flowed outward some distance in a shallow lens above the heavier salt water, which also acted as a hydraulic dam to stop most river flow at the Montezuma Hills and cause freshwater to backup and flood a vast area in the lowest part of the Central Valley.

This flooding starting just five thousand years ago created California's Delta. Because sea level rise was gradual, the flooded area always remained very shallow beyond the deeper river channels and became covered by tall marsh plants called tules. Seas still slowly rose, though, and freshwater in the flooded Delta area also did just slowly enough for each new tule generation to grow on the last's flooded remains. Eventually the latest tule generation grew on many feet of ancestral organic remains which became the Delta's famous peat soil. A similar process in the same time period north of East Anglia created England's famous Fenlands and provided the term fen for similar wetlands around the world. Consequently the Delta is California's largest fen and one of the largest in the world.

What happened to it next is another tale.

Dr. Glen Holstein received his PhD in Botany from UC Davis and is a Senior Scientist with Zentner and Zentner, a local biological consulting company. Glen is Chapter Botanist for the Sacramento Valley Chapter of the California Native Plant Society , represents that Chapter at Habitat 2020 and was the California Prairie spokesman at its Wildflower Weekend in April , 2005 . He's also on the Board of Tuleyome, a nonprofit organization working to protect the wild and agricultural heritage of California's Inner Coast Range and Western Sacramento Valley.

Yard sale rules: no more than three per year, no signs on telephone poles

Six months ago, the News-Ledger launched WestSac.com and revitalized its sister website, News-Ledger.com. Since that launch, visitor traffic has about doubled -- and it continues to grow.

If you want to connect with West Sacramento online, there's no better choice!

BY THE NUMBERS:
Our web traffic from the last 30 days

Monthly Visits:	5,425
Monthly Unique Visitors:	4,204
Monthly Pageviews:	11,424
Average Visit Duration:	1:28

(All above data is from Google Analytics, an industry standard, for the 30 days ending on May 7, 2012.)

If you're thinking of advertising your business on the internet -- either on our website or on someone else's -- you will have to learn a few new tricks.

But it's not rocket science.

Here are some of them:

DO START by making sure, first of all, that you have your own website -- even if yours is a very small business. People use the web to find a business more often than they use the yellow pages these days. Fortunately, it's fairly easy and very cheap to have a basic business website online (as little as around $10-$15 month if you do it yourself).

BUYING AN ONLINE AD? DON'T just scan your business card and pay somebody to put it on their website, and consider yourself to have successfully "advertised on the web."

1.) Can that website target your customers' demographics? If your ad is going to be seen mostly by people outside your customer base (wrong town, wrong gender, wrong age, etc.), then most of your money will be wasted.

2.) What CPM will you pay? The CPM, or cost-per-thousand "impressions," tells you the rate you are paying for every 1,000 viewers exposed to your ad. Look beyond any flat rate you're offered, and find out the CPM.

3.) Ask for a Google Analytics report for the past few months. In the report, understand that a "unique visitor" counts how many different people (actually, computer IP addresses) visited that website over a period of time, and that's an important number. "Visits" counts total visits, even by repeat customers. "Pageviews" counts the number of website pages viewed by all these visitors on all their visits. Make sure you "compare apples to apples" when navigating terms like these.

4.) When you pay for an ad on someone's website, where will they put it? Will it be right next to the website's prime content -- the stuff people go there to see? Or will it be somewhere way down the page? Will it be buried in the clutter of other ads? Get good page position!

6.) Your online ad should not just be a scanned business card. It should contain a strong special offer or a promise to satisfy the viewer's curiosity about something. The appeal should be so compelling that the viewer will take the time to click on the ad. Aim for bold, simple, compelling.

7.) Customers will click on your ad to find out more about your business offer. This should redirect them to your business -- but not to your website's home page.

So where should they go?

The answer to that question will cost you the price of a cup of coffee!

Call Steve Marschke at (916) 371-8030 or email steve@news-ledger.com for more information on advertising at WestSac.com and its sister site News-Ledger.com.

Police log

Information for this 'Police Log' has come directly from original police reports and documents. The information includes citizen complaints and other statements that have not substantiated or proven by an investigation or a courtroom.

Not all the week's police documents were available to the News-Ledger. The department reported problems with its computer system.

May 1, 2:50 p.m.

A 37-year old Cummins Way man was arrested after trying to defraud a Riverpoint Court store. He put some merchandise into a cart and attempted unsuccessfully to return it for money, but was detained as he tried to leave.

May 1, 5 p.m.

An officer was dispatched to the 400-block of Westacre Road for the report of a subject who was "acting strange and knocking on apartment doors." The 45-year old Sacramento man was contacted "and stated (that) people were after him." The man showed signs of alcohol and drug use. He admitted having had some beer that day and methamphetamine the day before, and exhibited rapid speech, paranoia and other symptoms. He was arrested. His parole agent issued a request to detain him.

May 1, 5 p.m.

A Harbor Boulevard tire shop reported vandalism to a fence, in which someone stole some wrought iron posts. The posts were seen in a nearby, fenced-in Franklyn Way yard. An officer went the home and contacted a resident, a 28-year old parolee. The man said he hadn't damaged the fence. When told that the officer had seen the posts in his yard, the man suggested the officer "just take him to jail." The parolee was arrested and his parole agent issued a "detain" order. The manager of the tire shop said he wanted to press charges.

May 1, 8:24 p.m.

An officer contacted a 28-year old Maple Street man seen carrying a "rifle" on the street. The weapon turned out to be a paintball gun that "looked like a realistic M16." The subject, however, was deemed too intoxicated to take care of himself, and went to jail.

May 1, 10:09 p.m.

A 46-year old Placer County woman tried to use an "obviously" fake Visa gift card to purchase $74.80 worth of goods at an Ikea Court store. While she was doing this, a suspicious man came into the store, looked around and left. The card had the woman's name on it, but lamination was pulling off and the magnetic strip didn't work – a clerk had to manually enter the card's numbers.

Police arrived. She opened her purse to show her ID, and an officer spotted some checks in someone else's name. The ID was in the same name as the checks. After being read her rights, the woman she admitted the ID and checks were stolen. It turned out she had a misdemeanor warrant from Placer County for a probation violation as well.

Meanwhile, police contacted the suspicious 39-year old man outside in the parking lot in a Ford Ranger. He was found to be on probation, and a probation search turned up merchandise bought with a similar fake gift card at another store, as well as equipment for making gift cards and credit cards. The man admitted another such gift card, in his name, was in his shoe.

Both were arrested.

May 2, 8:30 a.m.

A 25-year old Todhunter Avenue man was arrested for passing two counterfeit money orders at his apartment complex, and passing a stolen check at a West Sacramento bank.

May 2, 1:15 p.m.

A Welland Way man reported that someone had broken in and left behind a "written note with a vague warning."

May 2, 10:00 p.m.

A business on the 2400-block of West Capitol called police after a woman remained in their restroom for two hours. An officer found the woman intoxicated and unable to care for herself. She had a glass drug pipe. The 49-year old Cummins Way woman was arrested.

May 3, 12:41 a.m.

An unknown person fired shots at an unknown person in a car on Hobson Avenue. Police found the vehicle empty, and collected evidence.

May 3, 11:15 a.m.

A Wisconsin woman reported someone stole a laptop computer from her car at a Harbor Boulevard motel.

May 3, 4:47 p.m.

A 16-year old Sacramento youth was assaulted by two subjects near Michigan and Maple Street. They took his cell phone, gold chain and wallet, leaving him with minor injuries, before they escaped.

May 4, 11 a.m.

Someone shot out about 10 exterior lights with an air gun at the Club West Teen Center on Riverbank Road.

May 4, 1:30 p.m.

A 36-year old Sacramento woman and her 17-year old daughter attempted a shoplifting escapade at a Riverpoint Court store, bringing a two-year old child along as well. Loss prevention personnel watched on camera.

They took several empty bags from a register, and "walked through the store loading up a cart. . . filling a list they had brought with them." They accumulated over $1,200 worth of goods.

The woman then told the teen she was going outside to change the baby, and the woman exited the store. Meanwhile, the 17-year old's job was to find a "secluded" spot in the store, put the merchandise into the store bags, and take the cart out without paying. Store personnel detained the teen as she tried to exit with the cart. The mother fled the scene, but returned after they phoned her. During a consent search, the mother was found to have a drug pipe and suspected methamphetamine in her purse.

Loss prevention officials believe the pair had used the same technique twice previously, with success.

May 5, 7:45 p.m.

Police answered a call regarding an "intoxicated female" behaving strangely and talking to herself at a store on the 4200-block of West Capitol. She admitted to using methamphetamine, and was arrested.

May 6, 8 a.m.

A Valley Oak Lane woman reported someone had burglarized her car and stolen a $3,000 laptop computer from the trunk.

May 6, 11:25 a.m.

A market on the 3000-block of West Capitol reported that a subject walked in, put a bottle of "Mad Dog 20/20" in his backpack, and left without paying. He had done this before as well.

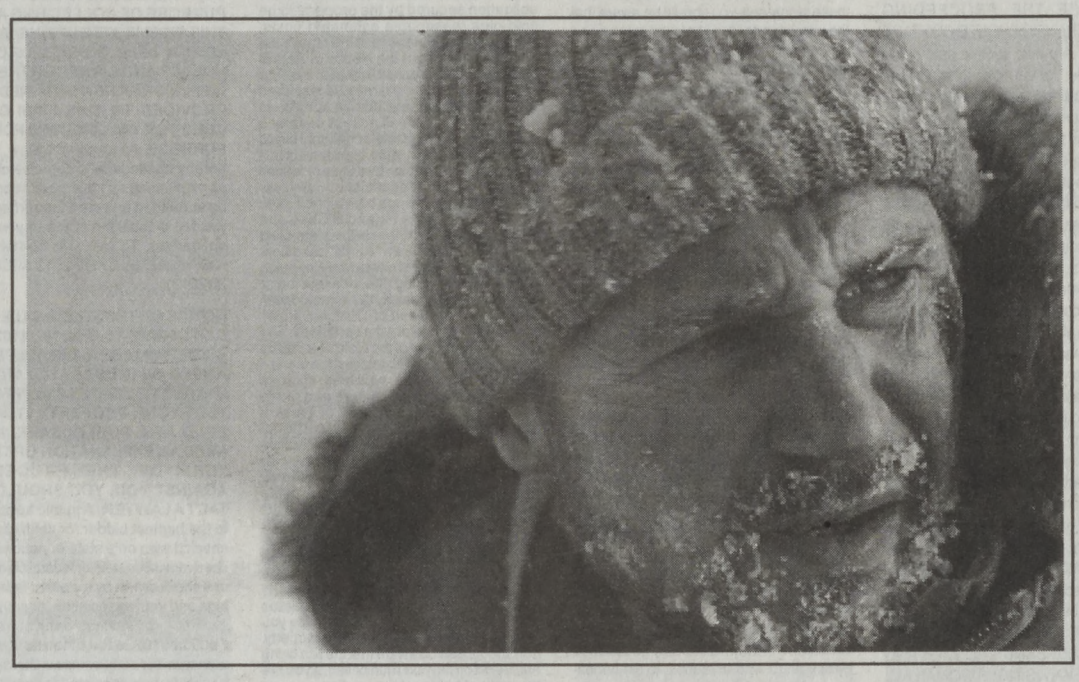
COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS

BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Grey" (R) -- A plane carrying Alaskan oil-rig roughnecks goes down in the frigid wilderness just as the wolves are getting hungry. Fortunately, Liam Neeson's character survived the crash. Neeson plays Ottway, a man hired by the oil rig to keep wolves and bears away. Yet when they've crashed into the tundra and wolves are circling the survivors, some people still want to argue with the expert.

The trailer and posters suggest that this is a movie about Liam Neeson punching wolves. The script also gets a bit philosophical without getting too corny or heavy-handed. For a movie called "The Grey," things sure get dark. Well worth checking out for a tale of grizzled determination and man-versus-wolf survival.



LIAM NEESON in 'The Grey'

"Chronicle" (PG-13) -- A few high-school boys develop mental powers, and it's all fun and games -- for a while. This refreshing, character-driven movie has supernatural powers, but veers away from colorful tights and silly catchphrases. After three boys explore a mysterious hole in the ground, they come out with new psychokinetic powers that they use for tomfoolery. As their abilities grow, dark sides come out and bonds are put to the test.

The whole thing is shown from the perspective of a handheld camera that the teens always seem to have with them. The found-footage approach has been used quite a lot lately, and it's hard to say if it brings anything to this film. What is here is an original movie with an original take on something we've otherwise seen before.

"Rampart" (R) -- Woody Harrelson plays Dave Brown, a Los Angeles cop with a corrupt sense of duty. Brown's life spirals out of control after he gets caught on film viciously beating a suspect. The film is tightly focused on Harrelson and his portrayal of a irredeemable, delusional man. Harrelson makes this dirty cop captivating.

DOG OF THE WEEK

"One for the Money" (PG-13) -- Based the first book in a long series of quirky mysteries, this film misses all the good parts about detective stories and just gives us the cliches and one-note characters. Stephanie Plum (Katherine Heigl) is a sassy Jersey girl who gets down on her luck and takes a job as a bounty hunter. Her first assignment is to track down Morelli (Jason O'Mara), a former cop who had a high-school fling with Stephanie.

It's a detective-themed romantic comedy romp with the lady from "Grey's Anatomy," so what could go wrong?

The banter is excruciating, the mystery plot is dull and the Jersey accents are so bad they must be crossing some line. Even those who like Heigl will find her as irritating as the rest of us.

"Butterfly in the Typewriter: The Tragic Life of John Kennedy Toole"
by Cory MacLauchlin
(Da Capo, $26)
Reviewed by Larry Cox

This is the intriguing story of John Kennedy Toole, a New Orleans-based writer who with a single novel helped change the face of modern American fiction.

After studying English at Columbia University and teaching at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, Toole accepted a position at Hunter College, where, at 22, he was the school's youngest professor. In 1961, he was drafted into the U.S. Army and stationed in Puerto Rico. There, he began work on what would be his masterpiece, a novel he titled "A Confederacy of Dunces."

Following his discharge, Toole returned to New Orleans and began submitting his manuscript to publishers, including Robert Gottlieb, a senior editor at Simon and Schuster. After numerous rejections and troubled by paranoia and depression, Toole committed suicide on an inconspicuous road outside of Biloxi, Miss., in March 1969. He was 31 years old.

Toole's unpublished work might have remained forgotten had it not been for his rather determined mother, Thelma Toole. She found the manuscript atop an armoire in her late son's room and spent the next five years trying to find a publisher. She badgered Walker Percy, a faculty member at Loyola University in New Orleans, to read it, and when he finally did he was dumbfounded by how good Toole's work was. Three years later, "A Confederacy of Dunces" was published by Louisiana State University Press with a first printing of 2,500 copies. The book quickly attracted international acclaim.

In 1981, 12 years after his tragic suicide, Toole was posthumously awarded the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction for his novel. To date, the book has sold more than 2 million copies and been translated into two dozen languages. Many believe it is an American masterpiece.

In "Butterfly in the Typewriter," biographer Cory MacLauchlin builds a convincing case that Toole's life is one of the most compelling stories in American literary history.

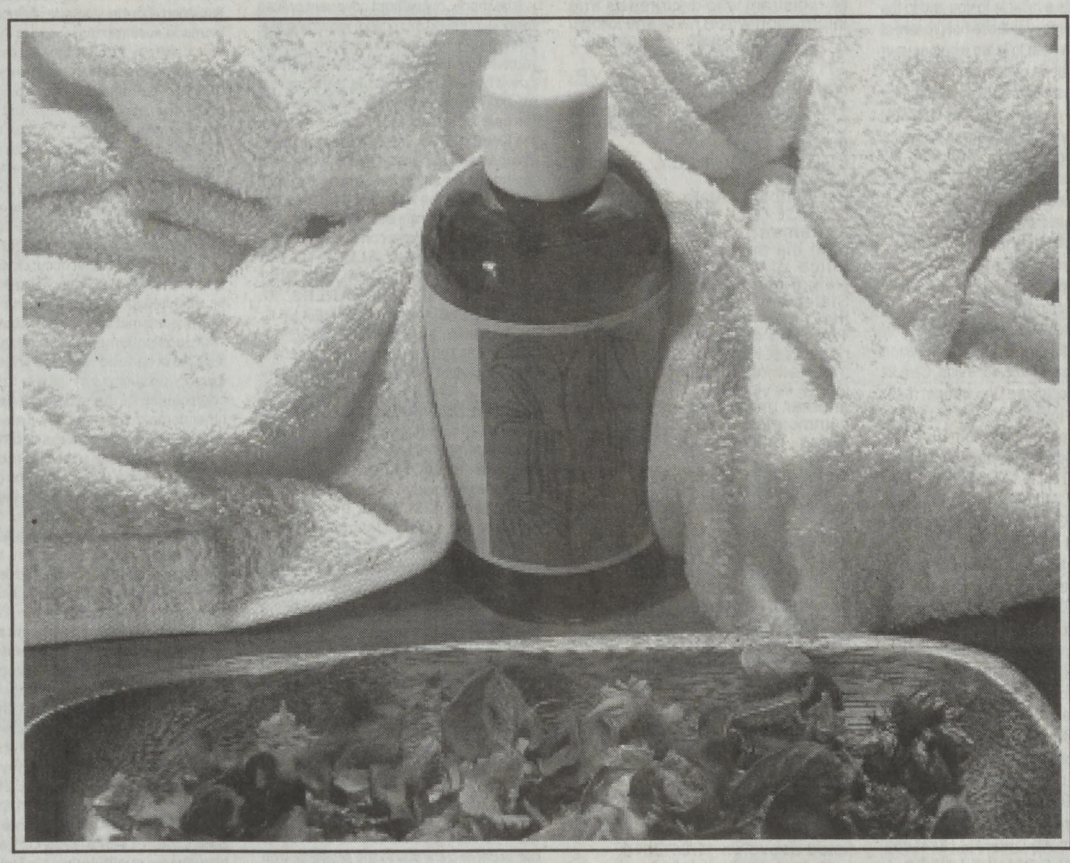
The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Create a Home Spa for Mother's Day

If you're looking for an unusual (and budget-friendly) gift Mother's Day, why not create a spa at home? You can pamper Mom using a few simple recipes that will make her feel loved from head to toe.

When mixing your home spa treatments, use fresh, high quality ingredients for the best results. All of the ingredients can be found in your refrigerator, pantry or local grocery store.



Never use ingredients for your home spa treatments that you wouldn't want to eat. Your skin, the largest organ on your body, breathes and is porous. It will absorb the properties of the ingredients you are using. Finally, ensure the containers or jars you will be using are sterile by boiling them in hot water. This will help prevent contamination of your finished product, which could lead to spoilage. Do not store the assembled spa treatments any longer than the shelf life of the most perishable ingredient.

A pretty box or basket filled with jars of your custom-made spa treatments, a decorative label you create, hand-written or printed instruction labels, and a note of appreciation for your Mom makes the perfect gift for Mother's Day!

CUCUMBER HAIR TREATMENT

If Mom loves to swim or has trouble with dry hair, this home-made spa treatment works wonders to combat the effects of chlorine damage and adds moisture to the hair.

1 egg
3 tablespoons olive oil?
1/2 medium-sized cucumber, peeled and chopped

Blend egg, olive oil and cucumber in a blender or food processor until smooth. Spread evenly through hair, leave on for 10 minutes, rinse thoroughly and pat dry.

TOMATO BLEMISH REMEDY

1 ripe tomato, chopped
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon instant-style oatmeal or old fashioned rolled oats

Blend all ingredients in a food processor or blender until just combined into a paste. Apply to blemishes on the skin, making sure mixture is thick enough to stay in place. Leave on skin 10 minutes. Remove mixture with damp washcloth, rinse and pat dry.

CHOCOLATE FACIAL MASK

1/3 cup cocoa powder (not Dutch processed)
3 teaspoons heavy cream
2 teaspoons cottage cheese
1/4 cup honey
3 teaspoons instant oatmeal

Mix all ingredients together in food processor or blender. Smooth mixture onto face. Relax for 10 minutes. Wash off with warm water and pat face dry.

STRAWBERRY HAND AND FOOT EXFOLIANT

8-10 strawberries
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 teaspoon of coarse salt, such as Kosher Salt or Sea Salt

Mix all ingredients together into a paste using food processor or blender. Use mixture over a sink or place feet in empty tub, as the paste is messy. Massage mixture onto hands and feet. Leave on hands and feet for 10 to 15 minutes, then rinse and pat dry.

If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property.
